LITIGATION – AS CO-COUNSEL

State v. Light-Roth, No. 94950-6, Washington Supreme Court, Fall Term 2017. Whether State v. O’Dell, which extended procedural safeguards at sentencing given to juvenile offenders under 18 to someone who recently turned 18, is retroactive in its application.

State v. Jai’mar Scott, No. 94020-7, Washington Supreme Court, Fall Term 2017. For a sentence that is final after all direct appeals have been exhausted, whether legislation affording the opportunity for release by parole satisfies constitutional requirements following Miller v. Alabama and Montgomery v. Louisiana or whether re-sentencing is required to remedy the unconstitutional sentence a juvenile offender received.

Native Village of Kotlik v. Lawton, Case No. 3AN-14-05238 CI, Superior Court of Alaska, Third Judicial District at Anchorage. Whether adolescent youth may be subjected to forced psychotropic medication without their informed consent in a non-crisis situation without a court hearing.

Native Villages of Hooper Bay and Kongiganak v. Lawton. Whether the tribes’ foster children may be held against their will in a private psychiatric hospital without a court hearing, and if one is required, how quickly it must be held.

Gonzalez v. Douglas, Case No. 4:10-cv-00623-AWT, United States District Court for the District of Arizona. Whether a state statute that was used to eliminate the Mexican American Studies Program at the Tucson Unified School District violated students’ right to receive information and ideas under the First and Fourteenth Amendments. Following a successful reversal of the grant of summary judgment to defendants, Arce v. Douglas, 793 F.3d 968 (2015), plaintiffs prevailed following a 10 day bench trial in June and July 2017 on their 1st and 14th Amendment claims as to both enactment and enforcement of the statute. 269 F. Supp. 3d 948 (D. Ariz. 2017).
